TO REFER MATTER TO DAUGHERTY

Coolidge Will Take No Hand in the Klan Fight.

CLARKE OPENS THE BATTLE

Charges in Letter to President That the Klan as Now Operated is a "Real Menace to Law and Order." Fight Said to Be a Broadening of the Breach Between Evans and Simmons Factions of the Klan.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Real warfare has broken out within the Ku Klux Klan, with Washington as the battle ground.

Hostilities opened with the delivery of a letter at the white house from Edward Young Clarke, former imperial wizard, calling on President Coolidge "to end the activities of the element in control that makes the klan as now operated a real menace to law and order, individual rights and liberties and democratic political government."

At the white house it was stated the president would take no hand in the klan fight. It is expected that he will refer Clarke's letter to the department of justice for such investigation and action as the attorney general may deem necessary.

Clarke, with his secretary, Edgar Fuller, and other lieutenants, is here at one hotel, while a few blocks away Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans of Atlanta, George Butcher, great titan of Fort Worth, and H. C. McCall, representative in Washington, are registered at another hotel under assumed names. Both sides are busy laying their lines of battle.

The fight appears to be a broadening of the breach that has been growing for months between the Evans and Simmons factions of the klan, culminating a few weeks ago in the killing in Atlanta of William S. Cobb, Simmons partisan, by Philip E. Fox, Evans' adherent, for which Fox was given a life sentence last week.

It was regarded as significant that the Clarke bomb should be set off just on the eve of the opening of the senate investigation into the election of Senator Earle B. Mayfield, alleged to have been put in office through the organized influence of the klan in Texas, and also just when the United States supreme court is about to begin consideration of former Governor "Iron Jack" Walton's appeal from impeachment proceedings following his war on the klan in Oklahoma.

At Clarke's headquarters it was stated that for four or five months he has been carrying on a secret investigation of klan activities and has spent $87,000 gathering evidence to support his charge that the klan has fallen into evil ways since coming under the present control. This evidence, it was stated, will be placed at the disposal of the Mayfield investigators or any other proper governmental agency that desires it. Clarke's representatives will remain here, it was stated, until the Mayfield hearing is completed, while Clarke will divide his time for the next few weeks between Washington and Atlanta.

Clarke's evidence, supported by documentary proof, it was asserted, shows that the klan is now in absolute control of the governments of Texas, Oklahoma, Ohio, Indiana and other states, and that more than 120 cases of physical mutilation of victims have been traced to the klan.

Clarke himself has been the center of fire through a white slave charge at Houston and a breach of promise case at Atlanta. Both of these were branded as "frame ups" by Clarke spokesmen. It was the same Clarke, who now is seeking to tear it down, that built the Ku Klux Klan into the statewide organization it is today.

Renounced Claim to Throne.

New York, Dec. 28.—Following numerous denials here in the last six weeks of the betrothal of Miss Eleanor Margaret Green, daughter of James O. Green and great granddaughter of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, to Prince Viggo of Denmark, word was received here that King Christian had authorized public announcement of the engagement of his kinsman. Before this authority was given, however, the prince renounced all claims to the succession to the throne.

Disillusionment.

Bella—Do you believe in love at first sight, dearie?
Donna—I certainly don't. The first time I saw Jack Morton was in a swell limousine and I fell desperately in love with him. I found out later he had only hired the car.

Under Mrs. Brown's direction a national effort is being made to collect $100,000 to be used as an endowment fund for the ancestral home of George Washington's family in Sulgrave, England.

SIXTEEN SENTENCED

Condemned for Engaging in Gun Battle With Rhineland Separatists.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—France is apparently prepared to stay in the Rhineland and Ruhr indefinitely. That is indicated by the sentences passed by the French courtmartial at Duesseldorf on German officials and police who opposed the separatists in trying to detach the Rhineland from Germany. Altogether, 16 were sentenced to prison terms, ranging up to 10 years in exile, which is explainable only on the theory that the French expect to be still there after that time. The men were condemned on the ground that they participated in a gun battle with the separatists at Duesseldorf Sept. 30. The testimony showed that the separatists, who were ostensibly holding a peaceful demonstration, were armed, which was contrary to the rules made by the French authorities, and that they fired the first shots.

SUSPECT GRILLED BY DETECTIVES

Said to Have Admitted Brutal Attacks on Two Women.

New York, Dec. 28.—A man who is alleged to have strangled six women to death and attacked several others was captured here in the arrest of Frank Benner.

The prisoner confessed, police say, that he is the slayer of Estelle Phillips, saleswoman in a Broadway department store, who was strangled in her room 10 weeks ago. He also confessed, according to the police, to the murderous attack on Mary Mitchell, a Philadelphia nurse, who was attacked on the grounds of the tuberculosis hospital, Chestnut Hill, early this month. The nurse is in a dangerous condition and is not expected to live.

While Benner was being grilled the authorities were in communication with officials of other cities, who had reported that a man answering the prisoner's description had mistreated and choked to death five other women.

Benner occupied a room adjacent to that of Miss Phillips in a rooming house here and was seen hurrying downstairs with two suitcases after she was slain. He is stockily built and repellent in appearance. He has long powerful arms and large hands. Since the murder he has been sought all over the United States. He was arrested in an employment agency, where he applied for a position as a cook. Detectives were called when the clerk in the agency recognized him from a photograph.

At first he denied knowledge of the killing, but when detectives rolled up his sleeves and identified him by the tattooed figure of a mermaid on his forearm, he crumpled up and confessed, police say. The prisoner said he was raised in Brooklyn and that his father was a prominent churchman and ran a plumber's shop until 1905, when he died.

DENBY SEES NEED FOR NEW SHIPS

Would Build Eight Cruisers and Three Submarines.

COOLIDGE MAY APPROVE PLAN

Construction of These Warships Constitute Chief Feature of the Naval Secretary's Program in His Annual Report to the President and Congress—Would Attain Naval Treaty Ratio.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The navy department will send to congress next week a request for authorization and appropriation of funds to begin construction of eight fast 10,000-ton cruisers and three submarines of the cruiser or fleet type.

It was reported at the capitol that President Coolidge will add his approval of the recommendation.

The construction of these vessels constitutes the chief feature of the building program outlined by Secretary Denby in his annual report to the president and congress as being absolutely essential if the United States is to have any hope of attaining its rightful position under the 5-5-3 ratio of the naval limitation treaty.

Regarding cruisers, Secretary Denby said: "The navy of the United States is so ill balanced and so deficient in cruiser strength that it would be put at a serious disadvantage in major operations of any kind."

As to submarines, he says: "If present foreign programs are completed without any additions the United States would have to build 50,000 tons of submarines in order to attain the treaty ratio."

Pacifist and "little navy" members of the house and senate are expected to oppose the department's recommendations, but a vigorous fight will be made by those senators and representatives who believe the naval treaty involves an obligation to maintain the strength allowed this country.

GERMAN COURTS CLOGGED

Ebert Suspends Jury Trials in Interest of Economy.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—The German supreme court at Leipzig is clogged and almost broken down under a calendar of 1,200 cases of Germans awaiting trial for treason.

This was revealed through a decree by President Ebert issued as an "extraordinary emergency measure," making drastic reforms in the German judicial system to meet the situation bordering on national bankruptcy. The decree suspends all jury trials for three months in the interest of national economy. For the same reason it is decreed that no civil cases can be tried for the same period. Three extraordinary courts created some months ago to try a large number of radicals, or nationalists, charged with violating the law for the defense of the republic, have been ordered closed because the ministry of justice has no money to pay the cost of keeping them going. The supreme court is empowered to lighten its docket by assigning a large number of the treason cases to local courts of the different German states of which the persons charged with treason are citizens.

HERE AND THERE

GEN. PLUTARCO CALLES

Retired as Candidate For President of Mexico to Fight Rebels.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Shot by Woman.

Fremont, O., Dec. 28.—Fear of being jilted is believed by police to have caused Mrs. Anna Osendzuk to shoot Mike Nazurek, her fiance. Mrs. Osendzuk, who is mother of four children, is said to have been informed that Nazurek intended to break the engagement and marry a Toledo woman. Nazurek was wounded in the hip by one of five bullets fired at him.

FARLEY RETIRES AS CHAIRMAN

Calls on Coolidge and Tenders His Resignation.

SUITABLE SUCCESSOR SOUGHT

President Understood to Be Anxious to Toss the Plum to the Pacific Coast or Into the Interior West of the Mississippi River—Long Discussion Over the Chairmanship Ended by Farley's Action.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Edward P. Farley of Chicago, chairman of the shipping board, informally handed his resignation to President Coolidge, following the rejection of his nomination by the senate commerce committee.

Farley went to the white house soon after he had alighted from a train from Chicago, told Mr. Coolidge he thought he ought to step out, in view of the technicalities which had crept into the situation, and was assured the president was of the same mind.

Thus ends a long discussion over the chairmanship, which has caused President Coolidge considerable embarrassment and the shipping board much wonder as to who its new head is to be. Farley is removed from the picture unless the president should appoint him a member of the board. In this event it is likely Commissioner Edward C. Plummer of Maine will be named chairman, but this contingency is considered unlikely.

The president is now free to proceed with the nomination of a chairman. He is understood to be anxious to throw the plum to the Pacific coast, probably Paget sound, except that Commissioner Haney, a Democrat, whose record is regarded as flawless, stands in the way. If he can find a suitable Republican from the interior west of the Mississippi river, it is believed the problem will be solved.

Farley was given a recess appointment by President Harding when Chairman Lasker resigned after two years of service in June. At or about the same time Commissioner Frederick I. Thompson of Alabama received a recess appointment, and Bert E. Haney of Oregon was named to succeed former Senator Chamberlain, resigned. With only one member dissenting last week, the senate commerce committee turned down the Farley appointment and unanimously approved the Haney and Thompson appointments. The president then withdrew the names of Haney and Thompson in order to give himself an opportunity to reconstitute the board.

UNLIKELY AT THIS TIME

Reunion of Roman Catholic Church and Church of England.

London, Dec. 28.—Religious opinion in England, especially in nonconformist circles, is deeply stirred by the efforts to bring about a reunion of the Roman Catholic church and the Church of England, whose ties were severed by Henry VIII. The Archbishop of Canterbury selected the Christmas season for announcing that discussions are being held with Cardinal Mercier, because he felt that it would be least likely to provoke an acrimonious controversy at this period.

Serious fundamental differences continue to exist between Rome and the English Protestants, which apparently can not be bridged except by unthinkable concessions by one church or the other. Therefore, most shades of religious thought believe that a reunion is impossible. For this reason the Church of England's move is not likely to lead to any bitter nonconformist campaign against Rome. The negotiations are due to the growing strength within the Church of England of Anglo-Catholics.

Car Shops Destroyed.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Fire that broke out in the manufacturing district adjoining the Union stockyards was brought under control after wiping out the shops and offices of the International Car company. The property loss will exceed $100,000, according to the estimates. The International Car company builds and repairs freight cars, principally for the Pere Marquette railroad.

Killed by Playmate.

Columbus, Dec. 28.—Robert E. Martin, 15, who lived east of the city was accidentally shot and killed by a playmate, Carl Pfeister, 17, at the latter's home.

FAREWELL LETTER

Said to Have Been Written by Koretz to His Young Son.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—A farewell letter which Leo Koretz, promoter of the $7,000,000 "Panama bubble," addressed to his 16-year-old son, was made public here. The letter had been mailed from New York 10 days after Koretz disappeared, leaving behind him a trail of victimized friends and relatives. It had been addressed to Dr. Milton Mandel, intimate friend of Koretz, with a notation saying: "If you think my son should have this, please give it to him." The letter to young Koretz was turned over to Mrs. Koretz, who tore it up. Mr. Mandel, however, had memorized the letter and gave its contents to Referee Harry J. Parkin, hearing the bankruptcy proceedings.

"My Dear Son," Koretz wrote, "this is probably the last communication you will ever hear from me. I am a fugitive from justice, without family or friends. I am a victim of idleness, selfishness and indulgence. You have a wonderful mother and an adorable sister. Be good to them. Be good and strong and earnest. If at any time you feel yourself slipping, think of the fate that awaits me."

To Amend Liquor Treaty.

London, Dec. 28.—Lord Curzon, British foreign minister, has received a note from Washington containing suggested amendments to the liquor treaty which would give America a right of search of vessels within an hour's steam of the shore. It is stated that the Baldwin government will take action along the lines proposed by Secretary Hughes, inasmuch as all parties agree that such a treaty is necessary.

DIXMUDE SIGHTED

Reported Drifting Last Wednesday Into a Desolate Region.

Paris, Dec. 28.—A wireless dispatch from Medin in Tunis, a short distance south of the Gulf of Gabe where the Dixmude was reported to have been seen last Friday, states that the big dirigible was seen last Wednesday about 8 p. m. in southern Algeria.

At that time the Dixmude was drifting in a northeasterly direction towards the Hoggar plateau, 125 miles south of In Salah, a desolate region in the Sahara desert.

Into this region which has been long nicknamed the "country of the fatal thirst," the Dixmude was drifting Wednesday morning according to radio messages originating through the government wireless of Nigeria and reaching Paris from Tunis.

Two reports agreed that the Dixmude was seen drifting with the wind in the Hoggar district, 125 miles south of In Salah, in southern Algeria.

THE DOCTOR MAN

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHEN Celia Fraser decided that a lonely, undivided life was not making for her own happiness, she got out her cheap little motor car, washed it until it reflected the morning sun and rolled over the hills to Draychester, the nearest city. There, in the large orphan asylum, she placed herself on record as offering a home to one child under five, boy preferred.

Celia herself was as neat and pretty and as spotless, too, as her attractive home. She was almost forty now and her dark hair was streaked with gray that was very becoming, especially when Celia wore pink—and she wore pink very often.

"Auntie, your eyes are like brown pansies," said small Jimsie when he came to Miss Celia from the asylum. He was a pale, delicate child of four and he reveled in the beautiful garden where Celia had worked so many years.

Every day Jimsie took a little basket and picked up the eggs laid by his own three little Leghorn hens. Today he was coming from the chicken yard with this tender burden, deciding that he would like his egg poached for supper, and dear Aunt Celia should have the other egg.

Coming around the corner of the house he heard voices and paused. One was Celia's sweet low tones, the other voice had the nasal twang of a woman he disliked.

"A child is such a responsibility," twanged the voice of Martha Smith, "and can make a sight of hard work."

"A child is a great responsibility and a wonderful blessing," amended Celia softly. "Dear Mrs. Smith, I am praying every day for guidance."

"You need the prayers of the community," snapped Martha.

"I hope I will have those, too."

"Ise pwayin' pwayers," lisped Jimsie coming around the boxwood bush.

"Listening, eh? Sneaky?"

Jimsie nodded. "I've got sneakers—upstairs," he said proudly.

"Are you a good boy?" asked Martha as Celia took the little boy on her lap.

He looked at her gravely. "Sometimes."

"Hum! What have you done today, young man?"

"I was quite bad just now, Miss Smith."

"What did you do?"

"I curled up my nose at you," smiled Jimsie, frankly unashamed.

"Oh, Jimsie!" and Celia buried a pink face in his curly hair. "Martha, I am so sorry, Jimsie shall be punished—he cannot have any honey on his bread tonight."

Mollified by this prospect of punishment to the naughty little boy, Martha went home, her hands full of roses from the garden.

When she was out of sight Jimsie turned a repentant face up to Celia.

"Never do it again, auntie," he promised. Suddenly he looked sharply at her. "You didn't know I don't like honey!"

And that night Jimsie had plain bread and butter and milk without a drop of honey to sweeten it.

Later in the summer Jimsie was taken sick with a feverish cold. Celia called in her own doctor, but Jimsie would have none of him. He cried bitterly for his "own doctor man," until at last Celia telephoned the asylum and they promised to send one of their physicians, Doctor Blair.

"Blair," repeated Celia with a frightened look in her pansy eyes. "Of course, it could not be Ralph Blair, for he has been living in San Francisco for years."

But it was Ralph Blair—older, a little worn with hard work and inward sorrow. His meeting with Celia was brief.

"I did not know that you were married," he said, looking down at her from his great height.

"I am not," said Celia, and told the story of Jimsie, who had cried for him. Relief came into his tired eyes.

"Jimsie was like my own little lad to me," he said kindly. "In a hard, workaday world it is pleasant to find some one who watches the door for my coming and who sorrows when I go. Let me go to him now, Celia."

How easily the old familiar name slipped from his lips—and he did not even know that he had called her that!

Celia's heart was warm with a new sensation when she ushered Doctor Blair into her own room where Jimsie was lying on the big four-poster bed.

"Hi—Hi—It's my doctor-man," croaked Jimsie hoarsely, lifting his arms joyfully. "I been pwayin' for you!"

At last there came one long dreadful night when they both watched breathlessly with the small form between them. The doctor came around the bed—and they prayed together—until with the dawn new life came to Jimsie . . . and he awoke to smile at them.

"He loves you so, doctor, he should belong to you," said Celia, summoning her courage and strength for a sacrifice.

"He loves us both, Celia, and I love both of you," boomed the doctor's deep voice, "and so it remains with you."

Celia settled that question by going straight to his arms, and so when Jimsie was quite well again, he had a very wonderful experience. He accompanied his adopted parents and shared their honeymoon; perhaps a tiny satellite, who can tell?

The White Deer of Cozac Forest

In the Cozac forest in Glen Cannie, Inverness, Scotland, a white fawn has recently made an appearance in a herd of red deer. The animal has been observed closely through a telescope, and is said to be pure white with the exception of a slight bluish mark on the neck.

Best Cure for That Feeling.

The Lord made Adam and Eve full grown and put them in a beautiful place where they didn't need to work, and at the very outset they began to raise h—r. Then he made them go to work. If you feel like you are about to break loose, go to work.—Houston Post.

Oysters by Measure.

Edward was asked to go to the store for oysters. He went and asked the man for two pounds of oysters. "We don't sell oysters by the pound, my boy, only by the measure," said the dealer. The boy thought a moment, then said: "Then let me have two yards."

Dr. Johnson's Dictionary.

Dr. Johnson is commonly reckoned as a successful author, yet he received for many of his compositions a comparatively small sum. His most profitable undertaking was the dictionary for which he asked $7,875. The task occupied his time for seven years.

No Damage Done.

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train. Now, when they would sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind. Mrs. Smith gave a shriek. "Oh, Harry," she gasped. "I forgot to turn off the electric iron!" "Don't worry, darling," he replied, "nothing will burn. I forgot to turn off the shower bath."—The Christian Era.

Direction for Tanning Leather and Fur Skins

Farmer Can Make Use of Hides Produced on Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Directions for tanning hides on the farm are given in a new bulletin just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, and issued as Farmers' Bulletin 1334, "Home Tanning of Leather and Small Fur Skins."

This bulletin was prepared in response to the thousands of requests received from farmers for information that will enable them to make use of the hides produced on their farms and for which there is often no market. Sometimes hides can scarcely be given away, yet farmers must pay from $1 to $1.50 a pound for leather in small pieces. Under such conditions farmers naturally feel that they must either work up their raw materials or do without the finished leather.

While it is possible to do a fairly satisfactory job of tanning on the farm, it requires some skill and a considerable amount of experience. Only in the event that the margin of price between the raw hide and the finished product is such as to warrant the farmer in tanning for himself is it advisable to attempt home tanning. The inexperienced cannot hope to make leather equal in appearance, or possibly in quality, to that obtainable on the market, but farmers and ranchers should be able to make serviceable leather for most farm purposes by carefully following the directions given in the bulletin.

It is never advisable for an inexperienced person to try to tan valuable fur skins or large hides to be made into coats, robes, or rugs. The results would be disappointing, both in appearance and quality. Small fur skins of low market value, however, can be tanned for home or country use, according to directions given in the bulletin, a copy of which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Fair Enough.

Customer (who has submitted to be lathered by juvenile assistant)—I say, do they let you do the actual shaving?

Apprentice—That's all right, sir. The boss 'e lets me 'ave the plump gents 'cos they're smooth. But 'e still keeps all the dented ones for 'isself.—London Punch.

Stamp of Approval.

There's a certain man who is well known as a tyrant in his office but a very docile husband at home. The contrast is so decided that a friend finally asked if he were a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

"No," said the man, "and I'll let you in on the secret. The gas company is really to blame."

"We had been getting the same-sized gas bill month after month; just the same number of cubic feet consumed, and I began to figure that there must be something wrong with the meter and wrote the gas company about it. They inspected the meter and then wrote to me saying:

"There is nothing wrong with the meter. It merely goes to show that you have a well-ordered and regularly conducted household routine."

"And I, like a chump, showed the letter to my wife, and she hasn't let me have a thing to say about running the house ever since."

Augustus the Persistent.

"A good story used to be told of Augustus Harris' persistence in securing his engagement at the Royalty. Calling on Bruce one day:

"Do you want a stage manager?" asked Harris.

"No," replied Bruce. "I'm my own stage manager."

"Do you want an acting manager?"

"No, I'm my own acting manager."

"Do you want a treasurer?"

"No, I'm my own treasurer."

"Do you want an actor?"

"No, I don't; for heaven's sake, Gus, go away! Can't you see I'm so busy that I don't know where to turn?"

"Then you want help. I'll stay and help you."

"And he did."—"Myself and Others," by Jessie Millward.

Helen Among the Missing.

When Rufus Steel and Dick Hotelling met recently they compared domes. "It seems to me," said Steel, "that the last time I saw you there was a hair still standing, over toward the southwest section. What has become of it?"

"Ah, yes," said Hotelling, "that was Helen. Helen is dead. You'll notice I'm naming them now instead of numbering them. It seems more affectionate."

OLD ROME'S COPS
Ancients Had Traffic Laws to Curb Speed Fiends.

Draotic Action Was Necessary Centuries Ago to Protect Pedestrians From Reckless Drivers.

Historians tell us that 19 years before our era traffic conditions in Rome and reckless driving about the city had attained such proportions that drastic laws had to be enacted to curb the scions of wealthy families to whom a fine meant no more than it does to a young man in modern New York.

Late at night these young bloods would come driving into town from the outlying lands beyond the gates where wine, women—and possibly song—were plentiful. They showed utter disregard of the narrowness of the streets and the rights of pedestrians. Collisions were frequent and often fatal. One Mark Antony, who later figured in the headlines of the day as being involved in the affairs of a foreign queen named Cleopatra, was disgraced for life by a scar received in one of these youthful escapades.

Most of us have formed a mental conception of Rome in its heyday as a city of one or at most two-story houses surrounding a group of imposing civic buildings. This impression was gathered from the familiar views of Pompeii—the only Roman city (thanks to having been buried overnight) which was found pretty much as the Romans left it. But Pompeii is no fair sample. It was to Rome what Asbury Park is to New York—a provincial city of 20,000 inhabitants and a bathing resort where middle-class Romans owned or rented houses during the hot season. The upper story of Pompeian houses was usually built of wood, which either burned away in the conflagration or decayed beyond recognition in the 18 centuries they spent underground. Rome was no more built like that than it was built in a day.

If the streets of down town New York were originally laid out by cows those of Rome were surveyed by goat herds. As the city grew their width did not increase. Often that width was only eight feet.

The Via Sacra, the Broadway of the city, was but 24 feet wide. Consequently we read of an ordinance passed in 14 B. C. limiting the height of tenements to 70 feet, and a century or so later of another providing that no building could be built higher than 60 feet along its frontage but allowing a proportionate increase in height toward the rear. When we passed a similar ordinance here in New York some five years ago we had no notion that we were only following hoary precedent.—New York Times.

Not So Dumb.

"I think that children are not as observing as they should be," said the inspector to the teacher.

"I hadn't noticed it," replied the teacher.

"Well, I'll prove it to you," and turning to the class the inspector said: "Some one give me a number."

"Thirty-seven," said a little boy eagerly.

The inspector wrote 73 on the board, and nothing was said.

"Will some one else give a number?"

"Fifty-two," said another lad.

The inspector wrote down 25 on the board, and smiled at the teacher. He called for another number, and young Jack called out:

"Seventy-seven: now see if you can change that."—Public Opinion.

Real Danger.

Dan Boone, the fearless animal tamer of the circus, had a dread of cold air that amounted almost to an obsession. One day after his exhibition in a cage with a fierce lion, he remarked to the circus manager, "John, old man, this will be the death of me yet."

"You're not losing your nerve, are you, Dan?" inquired the other anxiously. "You're not afraid of that lion?"

"Afraid of that beast?" snorted Dan in disgust. "I should say not! But those cages are the worst place on earth for drafts. Some day I'll take cold in one of them and it will be the death of me."—Boston Transcript.

Relativity.

"Have you studied the theory of relativity?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "I don't see how it applies to my business, except maybe as it has to do with the fact that nearly every voter is trying to boost some relative for a government job."—Washington Star.

The Likeness.

Wife (waxing philosophical)—Just to think, John! First utter drabness, then the working of the sap and finally the gorgeous tree—splendid in its multitude of gold and crimson gowns! How like our lives!

Fed-up Husband—How like, indeed, my dear! You the gorgeous tree and me the sap!—Judge.

Appealed to Buddha.

An Englishman, a Scotchman and a Jew while in India visited a Buddhist temple and asked the Buddha to confer a favor on them.

The Englishman asked for glory and the Scotchman, of course, asked for money, but the Jew only asked for the Scotchman's address.

Number Flatirons.

Nowadays the housewives who use electric irons are legion, but the day of the old flatiron is not quite past. For those who still use them, an easy way to insure getting the right irons in turn is to number each with a piece of white chalk, 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on.

ROTARY CLUB

Favored With Solos by Robert Murray and Address by Frank Fischer.

The members of the Rotary club enjoyed a splendid entertainment at their noonday luncheon Thursday at The Boggis.

Robert Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Murray, and teacher of manual training in the public schools of Pontiac, Illinois, favored the club with two solos and Frank Fischer, son of Mrs. Dorothy Fischer, and a professor in Lake Forest college, Lake Forest, Illinois, gave a splendid address on "What is Man."

Both young men have given good accounts of themselves and received the hearty thanks of the club for their excellent performances.

Hotel Stenographer
BY ROE FULKERSON

"I have a fellow teaching me the tango," said the Hotel Stenographer.

"I thought you knew it," cried the House Detective.

"O, I do," said the girl. "But I can make a much better impression on this guy if I let him teach me something. He told me last night I showed the greatest natural aptitude of any girl he ever saw."

"I always like men to teach me things, especially something I already know. The poor dears like it so much."

"I learn to swim all over again every summer. I always let men teach me new dances, after I have learned them. I like to have them instruct me how to read palms, to shuffle cards to ride horseback and drive a car."

"This stuff about a guy looking for an accomplished woman is the punk. Every man wants a woman who looks up to him as a teacher and an oracle. If he teaches her he stands off and admires her, as if he was her creator. It is a joy to any man to feel that he has molded the life and destiny of any woman. In a week he takes credit to himself for all her good looks, feeling that if it hadn't been for him she would have been a Cinderella sitting by the fire."

"All we have to do is to show a few correctable defects and let 'em correct them for us, to make them as proud as a boy with a wart. They want to show off at every opportunity and, as the poet has so aptly said; 'Lives there a girl so dead she does not like to have some guy proud to take her around and let her strut her stuff for the admiration of his friends.' 'It's all right to be independent, Kelly. It's all very well to be self-sufficient, but any man, who feeds a pup, learns to like it so much that he wants to take it as a regular boarder.'"

CORN KING

William Gilmore Could Not Repeat Owing to Bad Season.

Contending with a season at no time especially favorable and capped at the end by a fall freeze that stopped growth before ears had come to full weight, William Gilmore of Licking county, who last year broke the world's record by raising on 10 acres 134 bushels of corn to the acre, was unable this year to repeat. He harvested 970 bushels on 10 acres.

His name stands, however, as champion for Licking county this year on a list of county winners in the latest 10-acre contest conducted by the extension service of the Ohio State university. The rest of the list follows, in this order—name of contestant, his county, his yield in bushels of air-dried shelled corn to the acre:

C. K. VanMeter, Allen, 73.3 bushels; Harry Geron, Clark, 80.6; John Gleason, Clinton, 88.7; N. L. Husted, De-fiance, 75.4; Will R. Peters, Fairfield, 80.8; Ira C. Marshall, Hardin, 94.9; Leslie Brown, Highland, 94.2; Thurman Plumber, Jackson, 72.9; Harvey G. Hammond, Knox, 88.2; Walter Graf, Lucas, 91.3; Coyd C. Dorn, Madison, 86.5; Henry Osterfeld, Mercer, 87.3; G. S. Brown, Morrow, 83.6; Ashur L. Dicus, Portage, 62.8; E. W. Roush, Sandusky, 95.8; Ward Rosenberger, Seneca, 73.0; W. L. Frank-houser, Shelby, 80.8; A. C. Hoyt, Wood, 95.7.

Only four Ohio farmers made the state 100 bushel Corn club this fall. Their names and records previously announced, will be officially added to the roll of this group during Farmers' week at the university, February 4 to 8.

KITCHEN TABLE

Should be Made to Fit Housewife—Should Not Stoop at Work.

The housewife who will walk up to her kitchen table and lay her hands upon it, palms down, can tell in a second whether the table fits her, say those who have been making special study of such things for home demonstration agents of the state agricultural extension service.

If with her palms flat upon the table top, the housewife stands erect then the table is about the right height, says Geneva M. Bane, specialist in adapting household equipment to save strength and time. At least, she adds, such a table is not too low, and it is the table of a height that compels the worker to stoop as she works that most induces faulty posture and wastes energy. Says Miss Bane:

"No thinking woman can afford to lessen her lung capacity, and run all the risk that this entails, just to save the few cents and the labor necessary in raising the table to a comfortable working height. Casters will serve often to give a table the necessary additional height, or blocks may be made to go under the legs and raise the working surface, or, it may be more desirable to supply new legs for the table."

Peculiar "Drum Fish."
In the Indian ocean is a curiosity called the "drum fish," which the island fishermen of the Seychelles, Ambrantes, etc., often take with hand lines and which is highly esteemed as an article of food; it has earned its name from its habit of making a booming noise when pursuing or pursued; in size and taste it is not unlike the cod.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Fostoria and were attended by Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Wilson, Charles Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson.

What is a Peddler?
The word peddler is derived from an old English word, "ped," as in Spencer's "Shepherds' Calendar." "A bask is a wicker ped wherein they use to carry fish." It has no connection with the Latin pedis, a foot, as often reported. A peddler is, therefore, one with a ped, basket, or pack, and it has been held in law, one who has the identical article he sells in his "ped." It is, simply speaking, incorrect, therefore, to call an itinerant merchant, who simply takes orders for goods bought from seeing samples he carries, a peddler.

MILLION DOLLAR INCOMES DECLINE FROM 206 TO 33

War Period Shows Peak of Money Earning.

Washington, D. C.—Million dollar incomes are growing steadily scarcer, according to a report made public by the Treasury department.

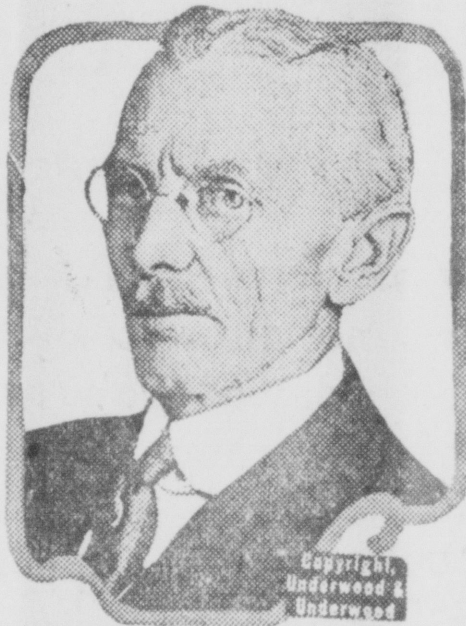

The report showed that for the calendar year 1921 only 21 persons acknowledged that they made more than a million dollars a year. This is the smallest number in the history of the federal income tax. In 1920 the number was 33, while in 1916, at the peak of the war time prosperity, the number was 206.

The number of incomes of almost every class showed a falling off. Those in the class of $500,000 to $1,000,000 dropped from 123 in 1920 to 63 in 1921. In all the classes above $100,000 a year the number decreased from 3,649 in 1920 to 2,352 in 1921.

The number of personal returns filed as of the calendar year ended December 31, 1921, was 6,662,176. The total amount of net income reported by these returns was $19,577,212,528, and the tax (normal tax and surtax) amounted to $719,387,106. As compared with 1920, the above figures show a falling off of 597,768 in the number of returns filed.

The proportion of the population filing returns was 6.28 per cent. The per capita net income reported was $184.65. For the preceding year the proportion of the population filing returns was 6.85 per cent. The per capita income reported was $223.87.

Museum Seeking Last of Cigar Store Indians

New York.—John Cotton Dana, director of the Newark museum, is having some difficulty in finding one of the ancient race of wooden Indians, who up until ten years ago used to stand at the door of almost every tobacconist in the city, a tomahawk raised in one hand, a bunch of cigars clutched in the other.

James Campbell, who died on Feb. 12, 1923, was the man who carved many of those figures. He cut most of them out with a hatchet. He never explained why the big chief was always represented in such a menacing attitude. Perhaps he was after the man who gave him the cigars, perhaps he was defending them.

There are five known cigar-store Indians in New York city at the present time.

150 Burglaries a Day Committed in Berlin

Berlin.—A meeting of criminal technologists was held recently in the Berlin city hall, at which Mr. Gollner, engineer-in-chief, spoke on modern methods of protection against burglary. He drew a comparison between crime before and since the war. In 1900 there were on an average two burglaries a day in Berlin, whereas in 1922 not less than 150 a day were recorded. The burglars go about each day in gangs of from 20 to 40. A few weeks ago in Litchenburg a gang of 90 had been established, and in Hamburg a gang of 100. Berlin, with its astounding number of burglaries a day, does not lead the crime list for German cities. Munich and Dresden are ahead of it.

Although Berlin's force of criminal police has been greatly increased during the last 20 years from 480 men in 1900 to several thousand today, it is not sufficient, even though working in co-operation with the protective organizations of the imperial post and imperial railway board.

In closing, Mr. Gollner said that the public showed amazing confidence, in spite of the appalling number of burglaries that are taking place every day. The crafty methods of the burglars have baffled even the most experienced detectives, and it has been difficult to find effective methods of defense. The electric system had proved to be more successful than any other. He urged that every resident of a large city have some kind of arrangement in his house to defend himself in some measure against these unpleasant visitors.

AMUSEMENTS

This is a thrilling melodrama in which the hero (David Powell) is pictured as a man unjustly accused of murder. Wounded, and making his escape thru treacherous bogs, he is discovered by Gale Brenon (Dorothy Dalton) living nearby. The girl cares for him and then sends him to safety as the sheriff and his posse arrive.

When Gale learns that Wainwright (Mr. Powell) is supposed to have killed her father, a revenue agent, she becomes vindictive and institutes a search, coming upon Roger in his own home. But here a woman recognizes one of the sheriff's men as the real murderer. He is taken, in tow and Wainwright set free to show his appreciation for the girl who had helped him in his hour of need.

Individual honors go to Miss Dalton with Mr. Powell splendid in the leading man's role. Others worthy of mention are Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and Warren Cook. Irvin Willat directed the production.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Lives of Men, Women and Children Are Put in Jeopardy.

It is high time the legislative and judicial authorities began to consider the crime (the word is used advisedly) of drunkenness when driving a motor car as something infinitely more serious than is drunkenness under ordinary circumstances. Prohibition is as yet too new for the world old opinion of the drunken man, as one to be laughed at, pitied, perhaps, put to bed to sober up, fined a small sum as a public nuisance, to change, at least over night.

But drunkenness which can harm no one but the inebriated man is one thing; drunkenness which is menace to all who use the streets and roads and which via the car, converts the otherwise innocuous victim of his appetite to a potentially wholesale murderer, is entirely something else.

Sentiment is swinging over to regarding the drunken driver as one who commits more than a misdemeanor; but it should swing faster and go further. The man who, drunk drives a car or truck is a madman; a man without sense, without reason, without judgment. He puts in jeopardy the lives of men, women and children. He endangers property. He may cause frightful loss of life, hideous maimings, terrible accidents. No maniac with a gun is allowed upon the streets; the man who deliberately makes himself a maniac and fits himself out with a car loaded with potential death for many, should be dealt with with the utmost severity. A few dollars' fine, a few days in jail, the loss of a license, are not enough. The man who runs amuck with a gun killing and maiming, gets years behind the bars. The man who runs amuck with a car while drunk is even more culpable.

Let judges once get it thru their precedent bound legal minds that it is not the drunkenness, but the drunken driving which is the crime, and our already crowded hard roads will be safer for us all; our children, our women drivers, as well as our sober citizens protected, as they have a right to be from a menace which has no excuse, legal or social, for existing.—National Highways Association.

DEMOCRATS AND TAXES.

Mr. Garner of Texas, former Democratic leader of the house of representatives and now ranking Democratic member of the ways and means committee of that body agrees with Mr. Garrett of Tennessee, present minority leader in the house that Democrats in congress should support any intelligent plan, like the Mellon proposal, for tax reduction. "I do not care," says Mr. Garner, "if a proposition emanates from Republican or Democratic sources. If it is best for the country, it will get my vote."

The maxim that what is best for the nation is best for the party is sound policy as well as sound patriotism. The fact that the Republican party, while the Wilson administration was in power, "played peanut politics" should serve as a bad example, to be shunned rather than as a good one to be emulated by Democratic leaders.

In this connection, it is regretted that the Democratic leader of the senate lacks the vision that is manifest by Mr. Garrett and Mr. Garner in the house. Mr. Robinson's attempt to ride horses going in opposite direction is not encouraging. The senator from Arkansas should know that the country is not with him in his reluctance to support the Mellon proposal or in his purpose to attach to that proposal a rider favoring the bonus.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

BOYS UNDER ARREST.

Ollie Brannan, aged 14, and Roy Beavers, aged 17, who were employed by Roger Hedges of Walnut township, and who entered the home of his mother on Sunday, December 16, and ransacked the house while the family was absent and stole a gun, revolver and a gold watch were placed under arrest at Portsmouth and were brought here and lodged in the county jail. The stolen articles were found at the homes of the boys near Lucasville. They will have a hearing in juvenile court.

PRINCE SHOWS HEROISM

Japanese Cabinet Resigns as Result of Attempt on His Life.

Tokio, Dec. 28.—Hirihito, prince regent of Japan, showed extreme heroism in a moment of great danger. When Daiseike Naniwa, son of a member of the diet, stepped up to the prince regent's limousine and fired point blank at the prince's breast, the bullet, deflected by the plate glass of the car window, struck Grand Chamberlain Iriye, riding as the prince's companion. Hirihito turned to the aid of his companion, carrying him to the detached palace at Akasaka, and then went quietly to the chamber, where he addressed the opening of the session of that body without referring to the incident. The Tokio police seized the would-be assassin.

The Japanese cabinet resigned as a result of the attempt on the ruler's life. The chief of the Tokio police, assuming full responsibility for failing to protect the regent, has also resigned.

Joys of Life.

One of the joys of life is planning a model home, but the discovery of the cost of building material and the disposition of the contractor to examine your plans and then follow his own takes some of the joy away.

TO REFER MATTER TO DAUGHERTY

Coolidge Will Take No Hand In the Klan Fight.

CLARKE OPENS THE BATTLE

Charges in Letter to President That the Klan as Now Operated Is a "Real Menace to Law and Order." Fight Said to Be a Broadening of the Breach Between Evans and Simmons Factions of the Klan.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Real warfare has broken out within the Ku Klux Klan, with Washington as the battle ground.

Hostilities opened with the delivery of a letter at the white house from Edward Young Clarke, former imperial wizard, calling on President Coolidge "to end the activities of the element in control that makes the Klan as now operated a real menace to law and order, individual rights and liberties and democratic political government."

At the white house it was stated the president would take no hand in the Klan fight. It is expected that he will refer Clarke's letter to the department of justice for such investigation and action as the attorney general may deem necessary.

Clarke, with his secretary, Edgar Fuller, and other lieutenants, is here at one hotel, while a few blocks away Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans of Atlanta, George Butcher, great titan of Fort Worth, and H. C. McCall, representative in Washington, are registered at another hotel under assumed names. Both sides are busy laying their lines of battle.

The fight appears to be a broadening of the breach that has been growing for months between the Evans and Simmons factions of the Klan, culminating a few weeks ago in the killing in Atlanta of William S. C. Coburn, Simmons partisan, by Philip E. Fox, Evans' adherent, for which Fox was given a life sentence last week.

It was regarded as significant that the Clarke bomb should be set off just on the eve of the opening of the senate investigation into the election of Senator Earle B. Mayfield, alleged to have been put in office through the organized influence of the Klan in Texas, and also just when the United States supreme court is about to begin consideration of former Governor "Iron Jack" Walton's appeal from impeachment proceedings following his war on the Klan in Oklahoma.

At Clarke's headquarters it was stated that for four or five months he has been carrying on a secret investigation of Klan activities and has spent $87,000 gathering evidence to support his charge that the Klan has fallen into evil ways since coming under the present control. This evidence, it was stated, will be placed at the disposal of the Mayfield investigators or any other proper governmental agency that desires it. Clarke's representatives will remain here, it was stated, until the Mayfield hearing is completed, while Clarke will divide his time for the next few weeks between Washington and Atlanta.

Clarke's evidence, supported by documentary proof, it was asserted, shows that the Klan is now in absolute control of the governments of Texas, Oklahoma, Ohio, Indiana and other states, and that more than 120 cases of physical mutilation of victims have been traced to the Klan.

Clarke himself has been the center of fire through a white slave charge at Houston and a breach of promise case at Atlanta. Both of these were branded as "frame ups" by Clarke spokesmen. It was the same Clarke, who now is seeking to tear it down, that built the Ku Klux Klan into the statewide organization it is today.

Renounced Claim to Throne.

New York, Dec. 28.—Following numerous denials here in the last six weeks of the betrothal of Miss Eleanor Margaret Green, daughter of James O. Green and great granddaughter of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, to Prince Virgo of Denmark, word was received here that King Christian had authorized public announcement of the engagement of his kinsman. Before this authority was given, however, the prince renounced all claims to the succession to the throne.

SIXTEEN SENTENCED

Condemned for Engaging in Gun Battle With Rhineland Separatists.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—France is apparently prepared to stay in the Rhineland and Ruhr indefinitely. That is indicated by the sentences passed by the French courtmartial at Dueseldorf on German officials and police who opposed the separatists in trying to detach the Rhineland from Germany. Altogether, 16 were sentenced to prison terms, ranging up to 10 years in exile, which is explainable only on the theory that the French expect to be still there after that time. The men were condemned on the ground that they participated in a gun battle with the separatists at Dueseldorf Sept. 30. The testimony showed that the separatists, who were ostensibly holding a peaceful demonstration, were armed, which was contrary to the rules made by the French authorities, and that they fired the first shots.

SUSPECT GRILLED BY DETECTIVES

Said to Have Admitted Brutal Attacks on Two Women.

New York, Dec. 28.—A man who is alleged to have strangled six women to death and attacked several others was captured here in the arrest of Frank Benner.

The prisoner confessed, police say, that he is the slayer of Estelle Phillips, saleswoman in a Broadway department store, who was strangled in her room 10 weeks ago. He also confessed, according to the police, to the murderous attack on Mary Mitchell, a Philadelphia nurse, who was attacked on the grounds of the tuberculosis hospital, Chestnut Hill, early this month. The nurse is in a dangerous condition and is not expected to live.

While Benner was being grilled the authorities were in communication with officials of other cities, who had reported that a man answering the prisoner's description had mistreated and choked to death five other women.

Benner occupied a room adjacent to that of Miss Phillips in a rooming house here and was seen hurrying downstairs with two suitcases after she was slain. He is stockily built and repellent in appearance. He has long powerful arms and large hands. Since the murder he has been sought all over the United States. He was arrested in an employment agency, where he applied for a position as a cook. Detectives were called when the clerk in the agency recognized him from a photograph.

At first he denied knowledge of the killing, but when detectives rolled up his sleeves and identified him by the tattooed figure of a mermaid on his forearm, he crumpled up and confessed, police say. The prisoner said he was raised in Brooklyn and that his father was a prominent churchman and ran a plumber's shop until 1905, when he died.

DENBY SEES NEED FOR NEW SHIPS

Would Build Eight Cruisers and Three Submarines.

COOLIDGE MAY APPROVE PLAN

Construction of These Warships Constitute Chief Feature of the Naval Secretary's Program in His Annual Report to the President and Congress—Would Attain Naval Treaty Ratio.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The navy department will send to congress next week a request for authorization and appropriation of funds to begin construction of eight fast 10,000-ton cruisers and three submarines of the cruiser or fleet type.

It was reported at the capitol that President Coolidge will add his approval of the recommendation.

The construction of these vessels constitutes the chief feature of the building program outlined by Secretary Denby in his annual report to the president and congress as being absolutely essential if the United States is to have any hope of attaining its rightful position under the 5-5-3 ratio of the naval limitation treaty.

Regarding cruisers, Secretary Denby said: "The navy of the United States is so ill balanced and so deficient in cruiser strength that it would be put at a serious disadvantage in major operations of any kind."

As to submarines, he says: "If present foreign programs are completed without any additions the United States would have to build 50,000 tons of submarines in order to attain the treaty ratio."

Pacifist and "little navy" members of the house and senate are expected to oppose the department's recommendations, but a vigorous fight will be made by those senators and representatives who believe the naval treaty involves an obligation to maintain the strength allowed this country.

GERMAN COURTS CLOGGED

Ebert Suspends Jury Trials in Interest of Economy.

Berlin, Dec. 28.—The German supreme court at Leipzig is clogged and almost broken down under a calendar of 1,200 cases of Germans awaiting trial for treason.

This was revealed through a decree by President Ebert issued as an "extraordinary emergency measure," making drastic reforms in the German judicial system to meet the situation bordering on national bankruptcy. The decree suspends all jury trials for three months in the interest of national economy. For the same reason it is decreed that no civil cases can be tried for the same period. Three extraordinary courts created some months ago to try a large number of radicals, or nationalists, charged with violating the law for the defense of the republic, have been ordered closed because the ministry of justice has no money to pay the cost of keeping them going. The supreme court is empowered to lighten its docket by assigning a large number of the treason cases to high courts of the different German states of which the persons charged with treason are citizens.

HERE AND THERE

Eugene Dent Langston, a jeweler of Hamlet, N. C., was arrested at Syracuse, N. Y., by an agent of the department of justice, charged with violation of the Mann act in eloping with Mrs. Gertrude Harrill, wife of Rev. Benjamin Harrill, Baptist clergyman.

D. P. Markey, for 33 years head of the Maccabees, has resigned as supreme commander, effective Jan. 1, to be succeeded by A. W. Frye, supreme lieutenant commander.

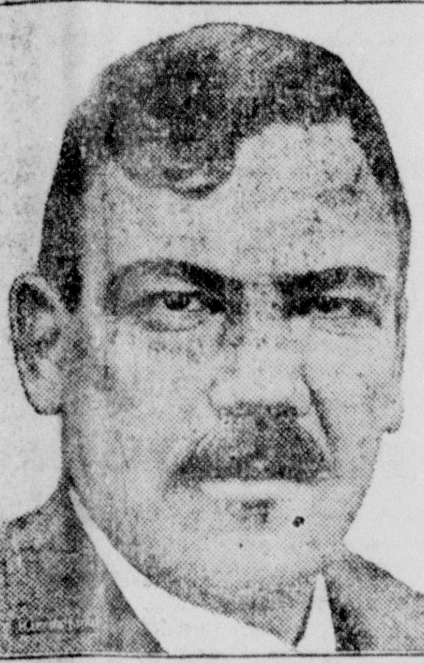

Ted Grosh, 20, a student at the University of Arizona at Globe, Ariz., was shot and killed, and Maxine McNelly, 19, is in the county hospital with two bullet wounds in her head. The couple were riding in an automobile when an armed negro and white man held them up. Grosh was killed when he attempted to protect the girl. The slayers escaped.

Senator McNary to Wed.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon surprised his colleagues and friends by announcing that he will be married in Chicago next Saturday to Miss Cornelia W. Morton, at the home of Joseph H. Morton, a prominent business man of that city.

GEN. PLUTARCO CALLES

Retired as Candidate For President of Mexico to Fight Rebels.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Shot by Woman.

Fremont, O., Dec. 28.—Fear of being jilted is believed by police to have caused Mrs. Anna Osendzuk to shoot Mike Nazurek, her fiance. Mrs. Osendzuk, who is mother of four children, is said to have been informed that Nazurek intended to break the engagement and marry a Toledo woman. Nazurek was wounded in the hip by one of five bullets fired at him.

Killed in Fight Over Girl.

Shelby, O., Dec. 28.—Willard Pettit is being held and police are searching for his brother, Wilbur, on charges of first degree murder in the killing of John Payne, 36, here. Authorities say the shooting was the culmination of a fight for custody of Bertha, 9, daughter of Willard Pettit and ward of the probate court, which had been decided in favor of Payne.

Falls Seven Stories to Street.

Columbus, Dec. 28.—A. R. Shaw, 60, was killed instantly when he fell from a seventh floor window of the Outlook building in East Broad street. Shaw became ill and raised the window for fresh air. As he raised the window he fainted and fell through to the street. Every bone in his body was broken.

Slashes Her Throat.

Hamilton, O., Dec. 28.—Mrs. Helen Miller, 33, who, police say, slashed her throat with a razor in an attempt to end her life, to prove that charges made by her husband were untrue, is fighting for her life in a hospital here. The husband, police said, had accused her of being friendly with another man.

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 28.—An average of 10 new depositors and $15,000 a day was reported by officials of the new Brotherhood of Railway Clerks' National bank here. More than $625,000 in deposits has been received since the opening of the bank.

Flees After Killing Man.

Cleveland, Dec. 28.—A fleeing motorist claimed one more victim here. Andrew Laason, 68, was found dead in the street. He had been struck by an auto while waiting for a street car.

Falls Down Elevator Shaft.

Columbus, Dec. 28.—Falling 25 feet down an elevator shaft at a local stove plant, William Wisker, 59, received injuries from which he died a few hours later in a hospital.

Inventor Dead.

Toledo, Dec. 28.—M. J. Owens, president of the Owens Bottling Machine company, this city, and inventor of the Owens bottling machine, died suddenly here.

Cory to Reside in France.

New York, Dec. 28.—William Ellis Corey, it is reported here, will spend the remainder of his days in southern France. This rumor gained circulation when it was learned that his intimate friends recently gave him a farewell luncheon. Mr. Corey, it is added, has dissociated himself from a dozen directorates which have bound him to the life of this nation.

FARLEY RETIRES AS CHAIRMAN

Calls on Coolidge and Tenders His Resignation.

SUITABLE SUCCESSOR SOUGHT

President Understood to Be Anxious to Toss the Plum to the Pacific Coast or Into the Interior West of the Mississippi River—Long Discussion Over the Chairmanship Ended by Farley's Action.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Edward P. Farley of Chicago, chairman of the shipping board, informally handed his resignation to President Coolidge, following the rejection of his nomination by the senate commerce committee.

Farley went to the white house soon after he had alighted from a train from Chicago, told Mr. Coolidge he thought he ought to step out, in view of the technicalities which had crept into the situation, and was assured the president was of the same mind.

Thus ends a long discussion over the chairmanship, which has caused President Coolidge considerable embarrassment and the shipping board much wonder as to who its new head is to be. Farley is removed from the picture unless the president should appoint him a member of the board. In this event it is likely Commissioner Edward C. Plummer of Maine will be named chairman, but this contingency is considered unlikely.

The president is now free to proceed with the nomination of a chairman. He is understood to be anxious to throw the plum to the Pacific coast, probably Puget sound, except that Commissioner Haney, a Democrat, whose record is regarded as flawless, stands in the way. If he can find a suitable Republican from the interior west of the Mississippi river, it is believed the problem will be solved.

Farley was given a recess appointment by President Harding when Chairman Lasker resigned after two years of service in June. At or about the same time Commissioner Frederick I. Thompson of Alabama received a recess appointment, and Bert E. Haney of Oregon was named to succeed former Senator Chamberlain, resigned. With only one member dissenting last week, the senate commerce committee turned down the Farley appointment and unanimously approved the Haney and Thompson appointments. The president then withdrew the names of Haney and Thompson in order to give himself an opportunity to reconstitute the board.

UNLIKELY AT THIS TIME

Reunion of Roman Catholic Church and Church of England.

London, Dec. 28.—Religious opinion in England, especially in nonconformist circles, is deeply stirred by the efforts to bring about a reunion of the Roman Catholic church and the Church of England, whose ties were severed by Henry VIII. The Archbishop of Canterbury selected the Christmas season for announcing that discussions are being held with Cardinal Mercier, because he felt that it would be least likely to provoke an acrimonious controversy at this period.

Serious fundamental differences continue to exist between Rome and the English Protestants, which apparently can not be bridged except by unthinkable concessions by one church or the other. Therefore, most shades of religious thought believe that a reunion is impossible. For this reason the Church of England's move is not likely to lead to any bitter nonconformist campaign against Rome. The negotiations are due to the growing strength within the Church of England of Anglo-Catholics.

Car Shops Destroyed.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Fire that broke out in the manufacturing district adjoining the Union stockyards was brought under control after wiping out the shops and offices of the International Car company. The property loss will exceed $100,000, according to the estimates. The International Car company builds and repairs freight cars, principally for the Pere Marquette railroad.

Killed by Playmate.

Columbus, Dec. 28.—Robert E. Martin, 15, who lived east of the city was accidentally shot and killed by a playmate, Carl Pfeister, 17, at the latter's home.

FAREWELL LETTER

Said to Have Been Written by Koretz to His Young Son.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—A farewell letter which Leo Koretz, promoter of the $7,000,000 "Panama bubble," addressed to his 16-year-old son, was made public here. The letter had been mailed from New York 10 days after Koretz disappeared, leaving behind him a trail of victimized friends and relatives. It had been addressed to Dr. Milton Mandel, intimate friend of Koretz, with a notation saying: "If you think my son should have this, please give it to him." The letter to young Koretz was turned over to Mrs. Koretz, who tore it up. Mr. Mandel, however, had memorized the letter and gave its contents to Referee Harry J. Parkin, hearing the bankruptcy proceedings.

"My Dear Son," Koretz wrote, "this is probably the last communication you will ever hear from me. I am a fugitive from justice, without family or friends. I am a victim of idleness, selfishness and indulgence. You have a wonderful mother and an adorable sister. Be good to them. Be good and strong and earnest. If at any time you feel yourself slipping, think of the fate that awaits me."

To Amend Liquor Treaty.

London, Dec. 28.—Lord Curzon, British foreign minister, has received a note from Washington containing suggested amendments to the liquor treaty which would give America a right of search of vessels within an hour's steam of the shore. It is stated that the Baldwin government will take action along the lines proposed by Secretary Hughes, inasmuch as all parties agree that such a treaty is necessary.

DIXMUDE SIGHTED

Reported Drifting Last Wednesday Into a Desolate Region.

Paris, Dec. 28.—A wireless dispatch from Medin, in Tunis, a short distance south of the Gulf of Gabe where the Dixmude was reported to have been seen last Friday, states that the big dirigible was seen last Wednesday about 8 p. m. in southern Algeria.

At that time the Dixmude was drifting in a northeasterly direction towards the Hoggar plateau, 125 miles south of In Salah, a desolate region in the Sahara desert.

Into this region which has been long nicknamed the "country of the fatal thirst," the Dixmude was drifting Wednesday morning according to radio messages originating through the government wireless of Nigeria and reaching Paris from Tunis.

Two reports agreed that the Dixmude was seen drifting with the wind in the Hoggar district, 125 miles south of In Salah, in southern Algeria.

THE DOCTOR MAN

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHEN Celia Fraser decided that a lonely, undivided life was not making for her own happiness, she got out her cheap little motor car, washed it until it reflected the morning sun and rolled over the hills to Draychester, the nearest city. There, in the large orphan asylum, she placed herself on record as offering a home to one child under five, boy preferred.

Celia herself was as neat and pretty and as spotless, too, as her attractive home. She was almost forty now and her dark hair was streaked with gray that was very becoming, especially when Celia wore pink—and she wore pink very often.

"Auntie, your eyes are like brown pansies," said small Jimsie when he came to Miss Celia from the asylum. He was a pale, delicate child of four and he revealed in the beautiful garden where Celia had worked so many years.

Every day Jimsie took a little basket and picked up the eggs laid by his own three little Leghorn hens. Today he was coming from the chicken yard with this tender burden, deciding that he would like his egg poached for supper, and dear Aunt Celia should have the other egg.

Coming around the corner of the house he heard voices and paused. One was Celia's sweet low tones, the other voice had the nasal twang of a woman he disliked.

"A child is such a responsibility," twanged the voice of Martha Smith, "and can make a sight of hard work."

"A child is a great responsibility and a wonderful blessing," amended Celia softly. "Dear Mrs. Smith, I am praying every day for guidance."

"You need the prayers of the community," snapped Martha.

"I hope I will have those, too."

"Ise pwayin' pwayers," lisped Jimsie coming around the boxwood bush.

"Listening, eh? Sneaky?" Jimsie nodded. "I've got sneakers—upstairs," he said proudly.

"Are you a good boy?" asked Martha as Celia took the little boy on her lap.

He looked at her gravely. "Sometimes."

"Hum! What have you done today, young man?"

"I was quite bad just now, Miss Smith."

"What did you do?"

"I curled up my nose at you," smiled Jimsie, frankly unashamed.

"Oh, Jimsie!" and Celia buried a pink face in his curly hair. "Martha, I am so sorry, Jimsie shall be punished—he cannot have any honey on his bread tonight."

Mollified by this prospect of punishment to the naughty little boy, Martha went home, her hands full of roses from the garden.

When she was out of sight Jimsie turned a repentant face up to Celia. "Never do it again, auntie," he promised. Suddenly he looked sharply at her. "You didn't know I don't like honey?"

And that night Jimsie had plain bread and butter and milk without a drop of honey to sweeten it.

Later in the summer Jimsie was taken sick with a feverish cold. Celia called in her own doctor, but Jimsie would have none of him. He cried bitterly for his "own doctor man," until at last Celia telephoned the asylum and they promised to send one of their physicians, Doctor Blair.

"Blair," repeated Celia with a frightened look in her pansy eyes. "Of course, it could not be Ralph Blair, for he has been living in San Francisco for years."

But it was Ralph Blair—older, a little worn with hard work and inward sorrow. His meeting with Celia was brief.

"I did not know that you were married," he said, looking down at her from his great height.

"I am not," said Celia, and told the story of Jimsie, who had cried for him. Relief came into his tired eyes.

"Jimsie was like my own little lad to me," he said kindly. "In a hard, workaday world it is pleasant to find some one who watches the door for my coming and who sorrows when I go. Let me go to him now, Celia."

How easily the old familiar name slipped from his lips!—and he did not even know that he had called her that!

Celia's heart was warm with a new sensation when she ushered Doctor Blair into her own room where Jimsie was lying on the big four-poster bed.

"Hi—Hi—it's my doctor-man," croaked Jimsie hoarsely, lifting his arms joyfully. "I been pwayin' for you!"

At last there came one long dreadful night when they both watched breathlessly with the small form between them. The doctor came around the bed—and they prayed together—until with the dawn new life came to Jimsie . . . and he awoke to smile at them.

"He loves you so, doctor, he should belong to you," said Celia summoning her courage and strength for a sacrifice.

"He loves us both, Celia, and I love both of you," boomed the doctor's deep voice, "and so it remains with you."

Celia settled that question by going straight to his arms, and so when Jimsie was quite well again, he had a very wonderful experience. He accompanied his adopted parents and shared their honeymoon; perhaps a tiny satellite, who can tell?

The White Deer of Cozac Forest

In the Cozac forest in Glen Cannie, Inverness, Scotland, a white fawn has recently made an appearance in a herd of red deer. The animal has been observed closely through a telescope, and is said to be pure white with the exception of a slight bluish mark on the neck.

Oysters by Measure

Edward was asked to go to the store for oysters. He went and asked the man for two pounds of oysters. "We don't sell oysters by the pound, my boy, only by the measure," said the dealer. The boy thought a moment, then said: "Then let me have two yards."

Dr. Johnson's Dictionary

Dr. Johnson is commonly reckoned as a successful author, yet he received for many of his compositions a comparatively small sum. His most profitable undertaking was the dictionary for which he asked $7,875. The task occupied his time for seven years.

No Damage Done

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train. Now, when they would sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind. Mrs. Smith gave a shriek. "Oh, Harry," she gasped. "I forgot to turn off the electric iron!" "Don't worry, darling," he replied, "nothing will burn. I forgot to turn off the shower bath."—The Christian Era.

Direction for Tanning Leather and Fur Skins

Farmer Can Make Use of Hides Produced on Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Directions for tanning hides on the farm are given in a new bulletin just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, and issued as Farmers' Bulletin 1334, "Home Tanning of Leather and Small Fur Skins." This bulletin was prepared in response to the thousands of requests received from farmers for information that will enable them to make use of the hides produced on their farms and for which there is often no market. Sometimes hides can scarcely be given away, yet farmers must pay from $1 to $1.50 a pound for leather in small pieces. Under such conditions farmers naturally feel that they must either work up their raw materials or do without the finished leather.

While it is possible to do a fairly satisfactory job of tanning on the farm, it requires some skill and a considerable amount of experience. Only in the event that the margin of price between the raw hide and the finished product is such as to warrant the farmer in tanning for himself is it advisable to attempt home tanning. The inexperienced cannot hope to make leather equal in appearance, or possibly in quality, to that obtainable on the market, but farmers and ranchmen should be able to make serviceable leather for most farm purposes by carefully following the directions given in the bulletin.

It is never advisable for an inexperienced person to try to tan valuable fur skins or large hides to be made into coats, robes, or rugs. The results would be disappointing, both in appearance and quality. Small fur skins of low market value, however, can be tanned for home or country use, according to directions given in the bulletin, a copy of which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Apprentice—That's all right, sir. The boss 'e lets me 'ave the plump gents 'cos they're smooth. But 'e still keeps all the dented ones for 'isself.—London Punch.

Stamp of Approval

There's a certain man who is well known as a tyrant in his office but a very docile husband at home. The contrast is so decided that a friend finally asked if he were a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

"No," said the man, "and I'll let you in on the secret. The gas company is really to blame."

"We had been getting the same-sized gas bill month after month; just the same number of cubic feet consumed, and I began to figure that there must be something wrong with the meter and wrote the gas company about it. They inspected the meter and then wrote to me saying:

"There is nothing wrong with the meter. It merely goes to show that you have a well-ordered and regularly conducted household routine."

"And I, like a chump, showed the letter to my wife, and she hasn't let me have a thing to say about running the house ever since."

Augustus the Persistent

"A good story used to be told of Augustus Harris' persistence in securing his engagement at the Royalty. Calling on Bruce one day:

"Do you want a stage manager?" asked Harris.

"No," replied Bruce. "I'm my own stage manager."

"Do you want an acting manager?"

"No, I'm my own acting manager."

"Do you want a treasurer?"

"No, I'm my own treasurer."

"Do you want an actor?"

"No, I don't; for heaven's sake, Gus, go away! Can't you see I'm so busy that I don't know where to turn?"

"Then you want help. I'll stay and help you."

"And he did."—"Myself and Others," by Jessie Millward.

Helen Among the Missing

When Rufus Steel and Dick Hotaling met recently they compared domes. "It seems to me," said Steel, "that the last time I saw you there was a hair still standing, over toward the southwest section. What has become of it?"

"Ah, yes," said Hotaling, "that was Helen. Helen is dead. You'll notice I'm naming them now instead of numbering them. It seems more affectionate."

OLD ROME'S COPS

Ancients Had Traffic Laws to Curb Speed Fiends.

Drastric Action Was Necessary Centuries Ago to Protect Pedestrians From Reckless Drivers.

Historians tell us that 19 years before our era traffic conditions in Rome and reckless driving about the city had attained such proportions that drastic laws had to be enacted to curb the scions of wealthy families to whom a fine meant no more than it does to a young man in modern New York. Late at night these young bloods would come driving into town from the outlying inns beyond the gates where wine, women—and possibly song—were plentiful. They showed utter disregard of the narrowness of the streets and the rights of pedestrians. Collisions were frequent and often fatal. One Mark Antony, who later figured in the headlines of the day as being involved in the affairs of a foreign queen named Cleopatra, was disgraced for life by a scar received in one of these youthful escapades. Most of us have formed a mental conception of Rome in its heyday as a city of one or at most two-story houses surrounding a group of imposing civic buildings. This impression was gathered from the familiar views of Pompeii—the only Roman city (thanks to having been buried overnight) which was found pretty much as the Romans left it. But Pompeii is no fair sample. It was to Rome what Asbury Park is to New York—a provincial city of 20,000 inhabitants and a bathing resort where middle-class Romans owned or rented houses during the hot season. The upper story of Pompeii houses was usually built of wood, which either burned away in the conflagration or decayed beyond recognition in the 18 centuries they spent underground. Rome was no more built like that than it was built in a day.

If the streets of down town New York were originally laid out by cows those of Rome were surveyed by goat herds. As the city grew their width did not increase. Often that width was only eight feet. The Via Sacra, the Broadway of the city, was but 24 feet wide. Consequently we read of an ordinance passed in 14 B. C. limiting the height of tenements to 70 feet, and a century or so later of another providing that no building could be built higher than 60 feet along its frontage but allowing a proportionate increase in height toward the rear. When we passed a similar ordinance here in New York some five years ago we had no notion that we were only following hoary precedent.—New York Times.

Not So Dumb. "I think that children are not as observing as they should be," said the inspector to the teacher. "I hadn't noticed it," replied the teacher.

"Well, I'll prove it to you," and turning to the class the inspector said: "Some one give me a number." "Thirty-seven," said a little boy eagerly. The inspector wrote 73 on the board, and nothing was said. "Will some one else give a number?" "Fifty-two," said another lad. The inspector wrote down 25 on the board, and smiled at the teacher. He called for another number, and young Jack called out: "Seventy-seven; now see if you can change that."—Public Opinion.

Real Danger. Dan Boone, the fearless animal tamer of the circus, had a dread of cold air that amounted almost to an obsession. One day after his exhibition in a cage with a fierce lion, he remarked to the circus manager, "John, old man, this will be the death of me yet."

"You're not losing your nerve, are you, Dan?" inquired the other anxiously. "You're not afraid of that lion?" "Afraid of that beast?" snorted Dan in disgust. "I should say not! But those cages are the worst place on earth for drafts. Some day I'll take cold in one of them and it will be the death of me."—Boston Transcript.

Relativity. "Have you studied the theory of relativity?" "No," answered Senator Sorghum. "I don't see how it applies to my business, except maybe as it has to do with the fact that nearly every voter is trying to boost some relative for a government job."—Washington Star.

The Likeness. Wife (waxing philosophical)—Just to think, John! First utter drabness, then the working of the sap and finally the gorgeous tree—splendid in its multitude of gold and crimson gowns! How like our lives!

Fed-up Husband—How like, indeed, my dear! You the gorgeous tree and me the sap!—Judge.

Appealed to Buddha. An Englishman, a Scotchman and a Jew while in India visited a Buddhist temple and asked the Buddha to confer a favor on them. The Englishman asked for glory and the Scotchman, of course, asked for money, but the Jew only asked for the Scotchman's address.

Number Flatirons. Nowadays the housewives who use electric irons are legion, but the day of the old flatiron is not quite past. For those who still use them, an easy way to insure getting the right irons in turn is to number each with a piece of white chalk, 1, 2, 3, 4, and so on.

First National Bank. The members of the Rotary club enjoyed a splendid entertainment at their noonday luncheon Thursday at The Boggs.

Robert Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Both young men have given good accounts of themselves and received the hearty thanks of the club for their excellent performances.

* Hotel Stenographer *
BY ROE FULKERSON

"I have a fellow teaching me the tango," said the Hotel Stenographer.
"I thought you knew it," cried the House Detective.

"O, I do," said the girl. "But I can make a much better impression on this guy if I let him teach me something. He told me last night I showed the greatest natural aptitude of any girl he ever saw."

"I always like men to teach me things, especially something I already know. The poor dears like it so much."

"I learn to swim all over again every summer. I always let men teach me new dances, after I have learned them. I like to have them instruct me how to read palms, to shuffle cards to ride horseback and drive a car."

"This stuff about a guy looking for an accomplished woman is the punk. Every man wants a woman who looks up to him as a teacher and an oracle. If he teaches her he stands off and admires her, as if he was her creator. It is a joy to any man to feel that he has molded the life and destiny of any woman. In a week he takes credit to himself for all her good looks, feeling that if it hadn't been for him she would have been a Cinderella sitting by the fire."

"All we have to do is to show a few correctable defects and let 'em correct them for us, to make them as proud as a boy with a wart. They want to show off at every opportunity and, as the poet has so aptly said; 'Lives there a girl so dead she does not like to have some guy proud to take her around and let her strut her stuff for the admiration of his friends' 'It's all right to be independent, Kelly. It's all very well to be self-sufficient, but any man, who feeds a pup, learns to like it so much that he wants to take it as a regular boarder.'"

CORN KING

William Gilmore Could Not Repeat
Owing to Bad Season.

Contending with a season at no time especially favorable and capped at the end by a fall freeze that stopped growth before ears had come to full weight, William Gilmore of Licking county, who last year broke the world's record by raising on 10 acres 134 bushels of corn to the acre, was unable this year to repeat. He harvested 970 bushels on 10 acres.

His name stands, however, as champion for Licking county this year on a list of county winners in the latest 10-acre contest conducted by the extension service of the Ohio State university. The rest of the list follows, in this order—name of contestant, his county, his yield in bushels of air-dried shelled corn to the acre:

C. K. VanMeter, Allen, 73.3 bushels; Harry Geron, Clark, 80.6; John Gleason, Clinton, 88.7; N. L. Husted, DeFiance, 75.4; Will R. Peters, Fairfield, 80.8; Ira C. Marshall, Hardin, 94.9; Leslie Brown, Highland, 94.2; Thurman Plumber, Jackson, 72.9; Harvey G. Hammond, Knox, 88.2; Walter Graf, Lucas, 91.3; Coyd C. Dorn, Madison, 86.5; Henry Osterfeld, Mercer, 87.3; G. S. Brown, Morrow, 83.6; Ashur L. Dicus, Portage, 62.8; E. W. Roush, Sandusky, 95.8; Ward Rosenberger, Seneca, 73.0; W. L. Fankhouser, Shelby, 80.8; A. C. Hoyt, Wood, 95.7.

Only four Ohio farmers made the state 100 bushel Corn club this fall. Their names and records previously announced, will be officially added to the roll of this group during Farmers' week at the university, February 4 to 8.

KITCHEN TABLE

Should be Made to Fit Housewife—
Should Not Stoop at Work.

The housewife who will walk up to her kitchen table and lay her hands upon it, palms down, can tell in a second whether the table fits her, say those who have been making special study of such things for home demonstration agents of the state agricultural extension service.

If with her palms flat upon the table top, the housewife stands erect then the table is about the right height, says Geneva M. Bane, specialist in adapting household equipment to save strength and time. At least, she adds, such a table is not too low, and it is the table of a height that compels the worker to stoop as she works that most induces faulty posture and wastes energy. Says Miss Bane:

"No thinking woman can afford to lessen her lung capacity, and run all the risk that this entails, just to save the few cents and the labor necessary in raising the table to a comfortable working height. Casters will serve often to give a table the necessary additional height, or blocks may be made to go under the legs and raise the working surface, or, it may be more desirable to supply new legs for the table."

For this privilege it paid to Panama the sum of $10,000,000, and undertook to pay the sum of $250,000 annually so long as such occupancy continued. These payments began February 26, 1913.

What is a Peddler?
The word peddler is derived from an old English word, "ped," as in Spencer's "Shepherds' Calendar." "A bask is a wicker ped wherein they use to carry fish." It has no connection with the Latin pedis, a foot, as often reported. A peddler is, therefore, one with a ped, basket, or pack, and it has been held in law, one who has the identical article he sells in his "ped." It is, simply speaking, incorrect, therefore, to call an itinerant merchant, who simply takes orders for goods bought from seeing samples he carries, a peddler.

MILLION DOLLAR INCOMES DECLINE FROM 206 TO 33

War Period Shows Peak of Money Earning.

Washington, D. C.—Million dollar incomes are growing steadily scarcer, according to a report made public by the Treasury department.

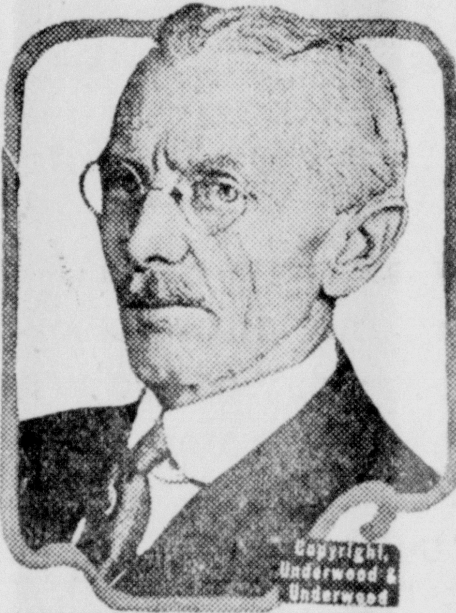

The report showed that for the calendar year 1921 only 21 persons acknowledged that they made more than a million dollars a year. This is the smallest number in the history of the federal income tax. In 1920 the number was 33, while in 1916, at the peak of the war time prosperity, the number was 206.

The number of incomes of almost every class showed a falling off. Those in the class of $500,000 to $1,000,000 dropped from 123 in 1920 to 63 in 1921. In all the classes above $100,000 a year the number decreased from 3,649 in 1920 to 2,352 in 1921.

The number of personal returns filed as of the calendar year ended December 31, 1921, was 6,662,176. The total amount of net income reported by these returns was $19,577,212,528, and the tax (normal tax and surtax) amounted to $719,387,106. As compared with 1920, the above figures show a falling off of 597,768 in the number of returns filed.

The proportion of the population filing returns was 6.28 per cent. The per capita net income reported was $184.65. For the preceding year the proportion of the population filing returns was 6.85 per cent. The per capita income reported was $223.87.

Museum Seeking Last of Cigar Store Indians

New York.—John Cotton Dana, director of the Newark museum, is having some difficulty in finding one of the ancient race of wooden Indians, who up until ten years ago used to stand at the door of almost every tobacconist in the city, a tomahawk raised in one hand, a bunch of cigars clutched in the other.

James Campbell, who died on Feb. 12, 1923, was the man who carved many of those figures. He cut most of them out with a hatchet. He never explained why the big chief was always represented in such a menacing attitude. Perhaps he was after the man who gave him the cigars, perhaps he was defending them.

There are five known cigar-store Indians in New York city at the present time.

150 Burglaries a Day Committed in Berlin

Berlin.—A meeting of criminal technologists was held recently in the Berlin city hall, at which Mr. Gollner, engineer-in-chief, spoke on modern methods of protection against burglary. He drew a comparison between crime before and since the war. In 1900 there were on an average two burglaries a day in Berlin, whereas in 1922 not less than 150 a day were recorded. The burglars go about each day in gangs of from 20 to 40. A few weeks ago in Litchenburg a gang of 90 had been established, and in Hamburg a gang of 100. Berlin, with its astounding number of burglaries a day, does not lead the crime list for German cities, Munich and Dresden are ahead of it.

Although Berlin's force of criminal police has been greatly increased during the last 20 years from 480 men in 1900 to several thousand today, it is not sufficient, even though working in co-operation with the protective organizations of the imperial post and imperial railway board.

In closing, Mr. Gollner said that the public showed amazing confidence, in spite of the appalling number of burglaries that are taking place every day. The crafty methods of the burglars have baffled even the most experienced detectives, and it has been difficult to find effective methods of defense. The electric system had proved to be more successful than any other. He urged that every resident of a large city have some kind of arrangement in his house to defend himself in some measure against these unpleasant visitors.

AMUSEMENTS

This is a thrilling melodrama in which the hero (David Powell) is pictured as a man unjustly accused of murder. Wounded, and making his escape thru treacherous bogs, he is discovered by Gale Brenon (Dorothy Dalton) living nearby. The girl cares for him and then sends him to safety as the sheriff and his posse arrive.

When Gale learns that Wainwright (Mr. Powell) is supposed to have killed her father, a revenue agent, she becomes vindictive and institutes a search, coming upon Roger in his own home. But here a woman recognizes one of the sheriff's men as the real murderer. He is taken in tow and Wainwright set free to show his appreciation for the girl who had helped him in his hour of need.

Individual honors go to Miss Dalton with Mr. Powell splendid in the leading man's role. Others worthy of mention are Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and Warren Cook. Irvin Willat directed the production.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Lives of Men, Women and Children Are Put in Jeopardy.

It is high time the legislative and judicial authorities began to consider the crime (the word is used advisedly) of drunkenness when driving a motor car as something infinitely more serious than is drunkenness under ordinary circumstances. Prohibition is as yet too new for the world old opinion of the drunken man, as one to be laughed at, pitied, perhaps, put to bed to sober up, fined a small sum as a public nuisance, to change, at least over night.

But drunkenness which can harm no one but the inebriated man is one thing; drunkenness which is menace to all who use the streets and roads and which via the car, converts the otherwise innocuous victim of his appetite to a potentially wholesale murderer, is entirely something else.

Sentiment is swinging over to regarding the drunken driver as one who commits more than a misdemeanor; but it should swing faster and go further. The man who, drunk drives a car or truck is a madman; a man without sense, without reason, without judgment. He puts in jeopardy the lives of men, women and children. He endangers property. He may cause frightful loss of life, hideous maimings, terrible accidents. No maniac with a gun is allowed upon the streets; the man who deliberately makes himself a maniac and fits himself out with a car loaded with potential death for many, should be dealt with with the utmost severity. A few dollars' fine, a few days in jail, the loss of a license, are not enough. The man who runs amuck with a gun killing and maiming, gets years behind the bars. The man who runs amuck with a car while drunk is even more culpable.

Let judges once get it thru their precedent bound legal minds that it is not the drunkenness, but the drunken driving which is the crime, and our already crowded hard roads will be safer for us all: our children, our women drivers, as well as our sober citizens protected, as they have a right to be from a menace which has no excuse, legal or social, for existing.—National Highways Association.

DEMOCRATS AND TAXES.

Mr. Garner of Texas, former Democratic leader of the house of representatives and now ranking Democratic member of the ways and means committee of that body agrees with Mr. Garrett of Tennessee, present minority leader in the house that Democrats in congress should support any intelligent plan, like the Mellon proposal, for tax reduction. "I do not care," says Mr. Garner, "if a proposition emanates from Republican or Democratic sources. If it is best for the country, it will get my vote."

The maxim that what is best for the nation is best for the party is sound policy as well as sound patriotism. The fact that the Republican party, while the Wilson administration was in power, "played peanut politics" should serve as a bad example, to be shunned rather than as a good one to be emulated by Democratic leaders.

In this connection, it is regretted that the Democratic leader of the senate lacks the vision that is manifest by Mr. Garrett and Mr. Garner in the house. Mr. Robinson's attempt to ride horses going in opposite direction is not encouraging. The senator from Arkansas should know that the country is not with him in his reluctance to support the Mellon proposal or in his purpose to attach to that proposal a rider favoring the bonus.—Louisville Courier-Journal

BOYS UNDER ARREST.

Ollie Brannan, aged 14, and Roy Beavers, aged 17, who were employed by Roger Hedges of Walnut township, and who entered the home of his mother on Sunday, December 16, and ransacked the house while the family was absent and stole a gun, revolver and a gold watch were placed under arrest at Portsmouth and were brought here and lodged in the county jail. The stolen articles were found at the homes of the boys near Lucasville. They will have a hearing in juvenile court.

PRINCE SHOWS HEROISM

Japanese Cabinet Resigns as Result of Attempt on His Life.

Tokio, Dec. 28.—Hirihito, prince regent of Japan, showed extreme heroism in a moment of great danger. When Daiseike Naniwa, son of a member of the diet, stepped up to the prince regent's limousine and fired point blank at the prince's breast, the bullet, deflected by the plate glass of the car window, struck Grand Chamberlain Iriye, riding as the prince's companion. Hirihito turned to the aid of his companion, carrying him to the detached palace at Akasaka, and then went quietly to the chamber, where he addressed the opening of the session of that body without referring to the incident. The Tokio police seized the would-be assassin.

The Japanese cabinet resigned as a result of the attempt on the ruler's life. The chief of the Tokio police, assuming full responsibility for failing to protect the regent, has also resigned.

Joys of Life.

One of the joys of life is planning a model home, but the discovery of the cost of building material and the disposition of the contractor to examine your plans and then follow his own takes some of the joy away.
